Have been experimenting with Sumopaint... it is really easy to produce interesting artwork.

Here is one i made earlier:

Can you see what it is ?

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

this one is a bit trickier....

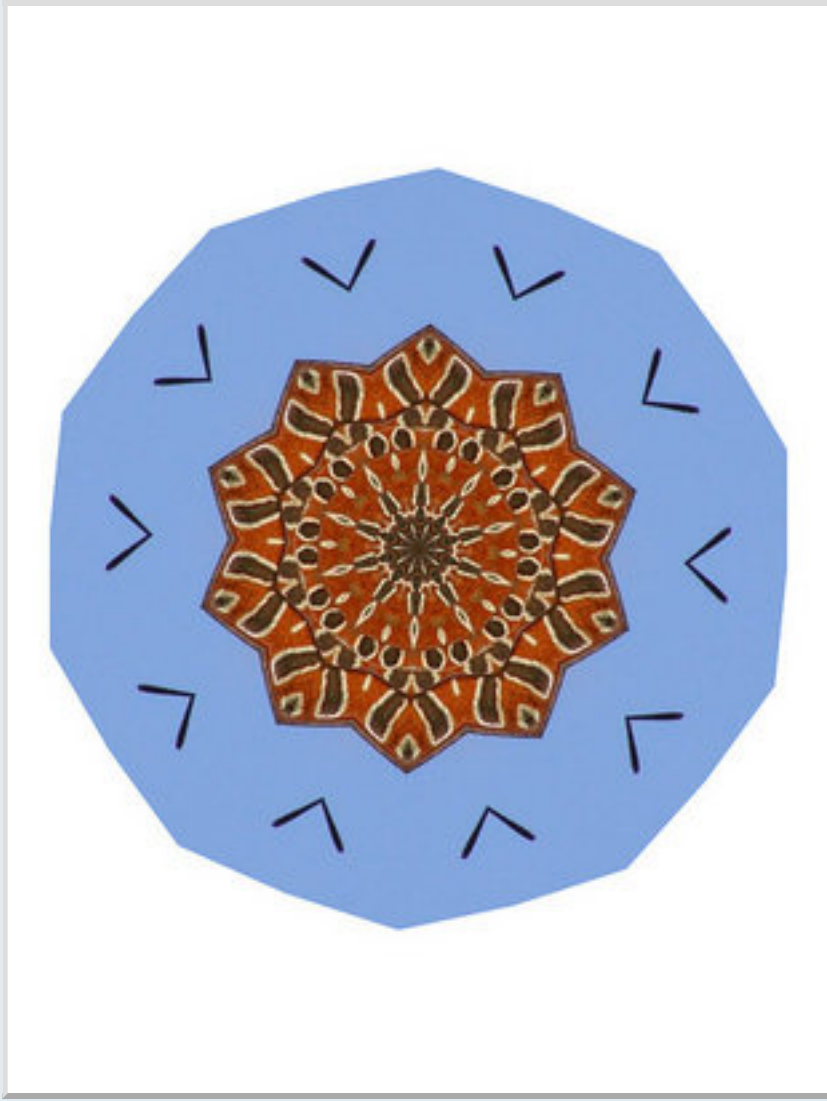

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

here's another one:

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

by Trev Sawyer, 03-Feb-11 02:30 AM GMT

The first one must be a small tortoiseshell but can't fathom either of the other two...
Unless the middle one is a black hairstreak?

Trev

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 03-Feb-11 02:38 AM GMT

Is the middle one one of the purple emperors?

Guy

EDIT: I think it's purple emperor. The clip comes from the hindwing and there's no well demarcated white on the hindwing underside of lesser purple.

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 03-Feb-11 02:45 AM GMT

And then two-tailed pasha?

Guy

Re: Charles Nicol

I can see Small Tort and 2TP but I can't see PE at all.... 😊

Lee

Re: Charles Nicol

by Charles Nicol, 03-Feb-11 10:04 PM GMT

Well done to:

Trev: you scored 1 out of 3

Lee: you scored 2 out of 3

Guy: you are today's winner with 3 out of 3 !!

The first was a Small Tortoiseshell on straw taken near Spaldwick, Cambs

The second was the underwing of a Purple Emperor from Fermyn Wood

The last one was the underwing of a Two Tailed Pasha from the South of France.

i will put up some more shortly

Charles

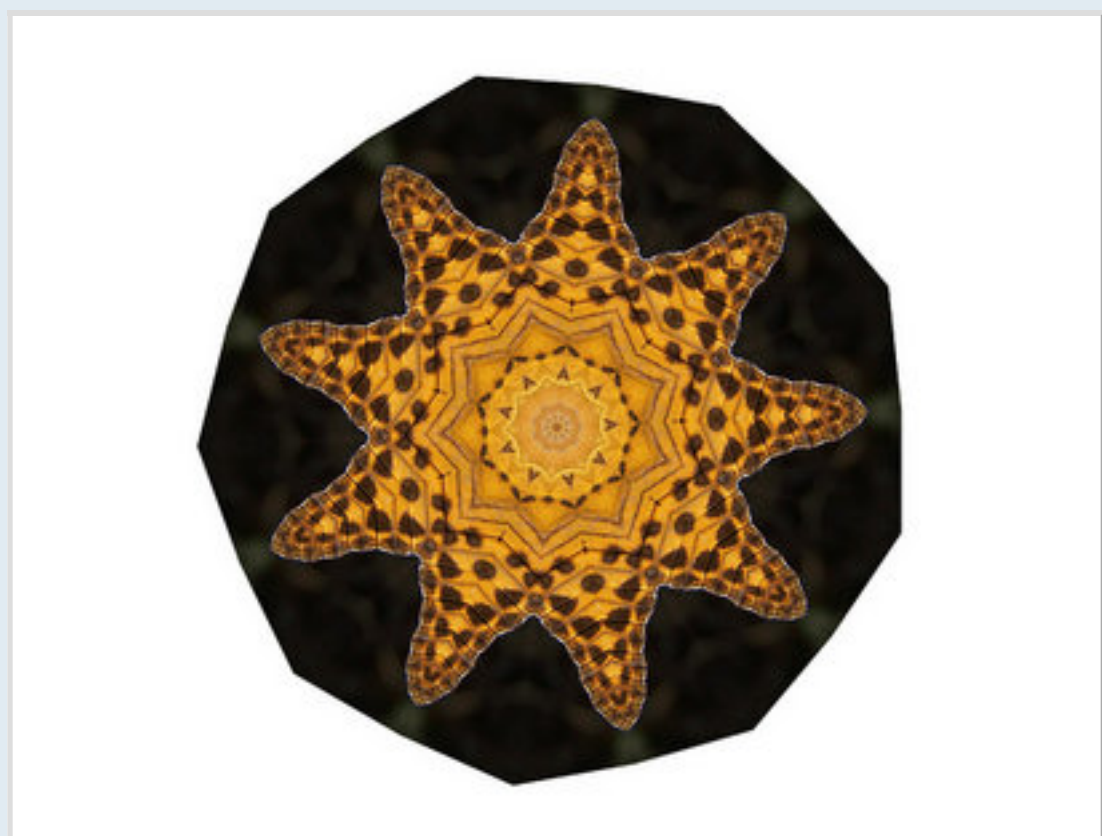

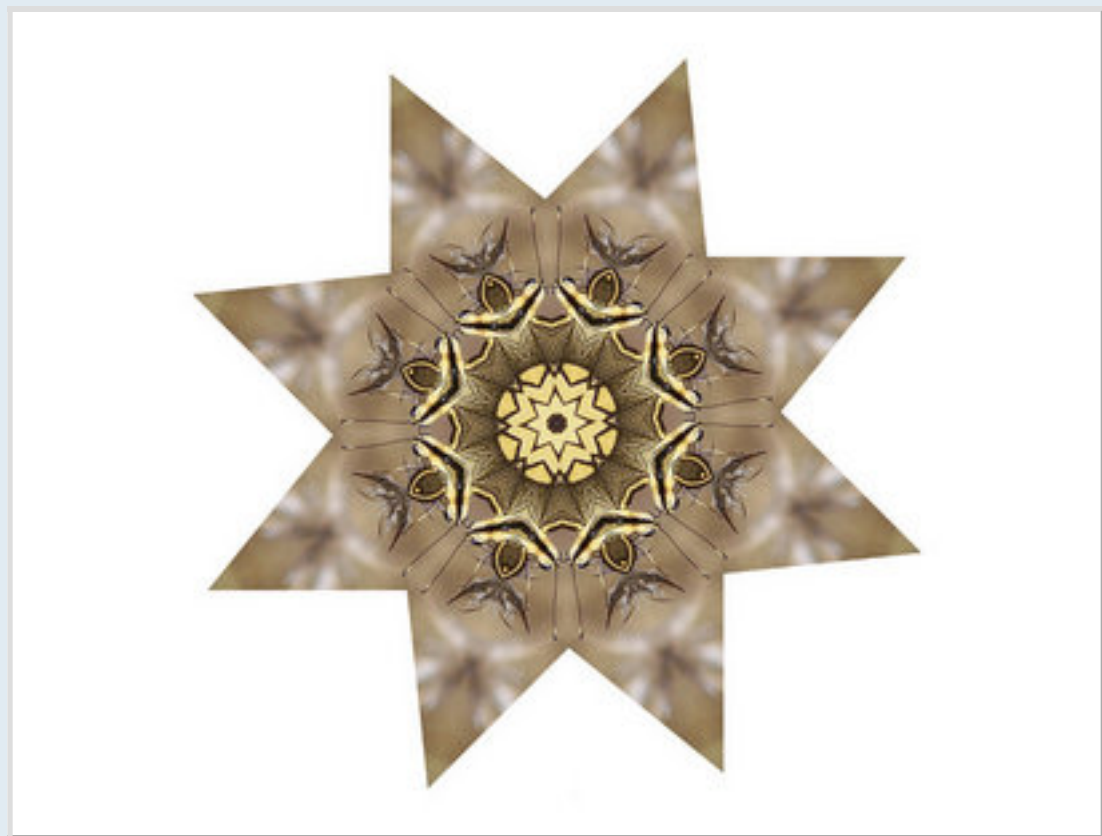

ps if you want to try Sumopaint go to www.sumopaint.com most of it is free.

Re: Charles Nicol

here are some more for you to enjoy... not too difficult 😊

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 03-Feb-11 11:53 PM GMT

Very nice effects! I've just tried out Sumopaint - never heard of it before. I use Google Docs but didn't know there was image software out there online too.

For your piccies, I go for swallowtail, comma and silver-washed fritillary.

Thanks for the cookie!

I'm really umming and aghhing about the third picture here. I think the others are:

1. Small copper
2. Peacock
4. Green-veined white
5. Small tortoiseshell

I think there might be two butterflies in the third picture. And one of them might be a small copper... But that one is puzzling me!!

Guy

Re: Charles Nicol

I had a brief look at SumoPaint but didn't download. So how do you create those kaleidoscope images with SumoPaint? You say it's easy 🤔🤔

All of your suggestions are correct...picture 3 only contains one butterfly though;

Pictures 1 and 3 are both modifications of this one:

Jack

you can do all kaleidoscope work using the online version.

select the filters tab at the top of the screen

from the menu select distort from the next menu select kaleidoscope;

if you want to keep the resulting image select file...save to my computer ;

i let it keep the png extension...then upload it to flickr which converts it into a suitable size & format for ukbutterflies.

hopefully these pics will help:

😄 A cross between a triffid and a Cyclops!

The real life butterfly, from the point of view of a would-be predator, is almost as weird. It's supposed to look as if it has two heads, one at each end of its body, replete with antennae on both.

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

Not so confident about these ones, Charles!

Is that a scarce chaser lurking in the second and fourth pictures?

I think marbled white for the grey-scale picture, but the blue is challenging. Is it Escher's, from one of your French trips? If not, I go for common blue. The chequering isn't far enough out in the fringe for Lysandra.

Guy

PS - I love the demon fish holding hands!! Brilliant!

Thanks Guy for your kind comments on my pics. You were exactly right with the identities...the blue was indeed Common from Huntingdonshire:

here is the Chaser...again from a local meadow:

I am glad i got the Long-tailed Blue right... i was having serious thoughts about Geranium Bronze afterwards 😊

Matsukase:

i had this problem at first...what you should do is allow the program to choose the .png suffix... but when you save it to your computer ...perhaps to "My Pictures"... choose a name and include .jpg at the end ...for instance kaleido1.jpg .this worked OK for me. alternatively you can send the .png version to flickr from your download folder without altering the suffix. then flickr changes the format & size so you can post it here.

good luck !!

Well as you are all being daft I might as well join in. Common butterfly but not original colours.

Re: Charles Nicol

Hi Guy

I am not making much progress with Jack's puzzle pic. His clue about darts could have led us to a Darter... but he did say it was a butterfly.

Thanks for asking about my brother. He has stayed in Cairo throughout the tumultuous events of the last few weeks. He seems to have come through the worst of it unscathed Masha'allah

Speckled Wood?

Yes, it is a guess, but these things have boggled my mind. They're amazing and very clever.

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 13-Feb-11 03:30 AM GMT

You're naughty, Jack! I had tried inverting the colours, but it made the white line black and highly improbable.

Speckled wood it could be, but I favour male ringlet. My last try.

Male Ringlet it is.

Charles

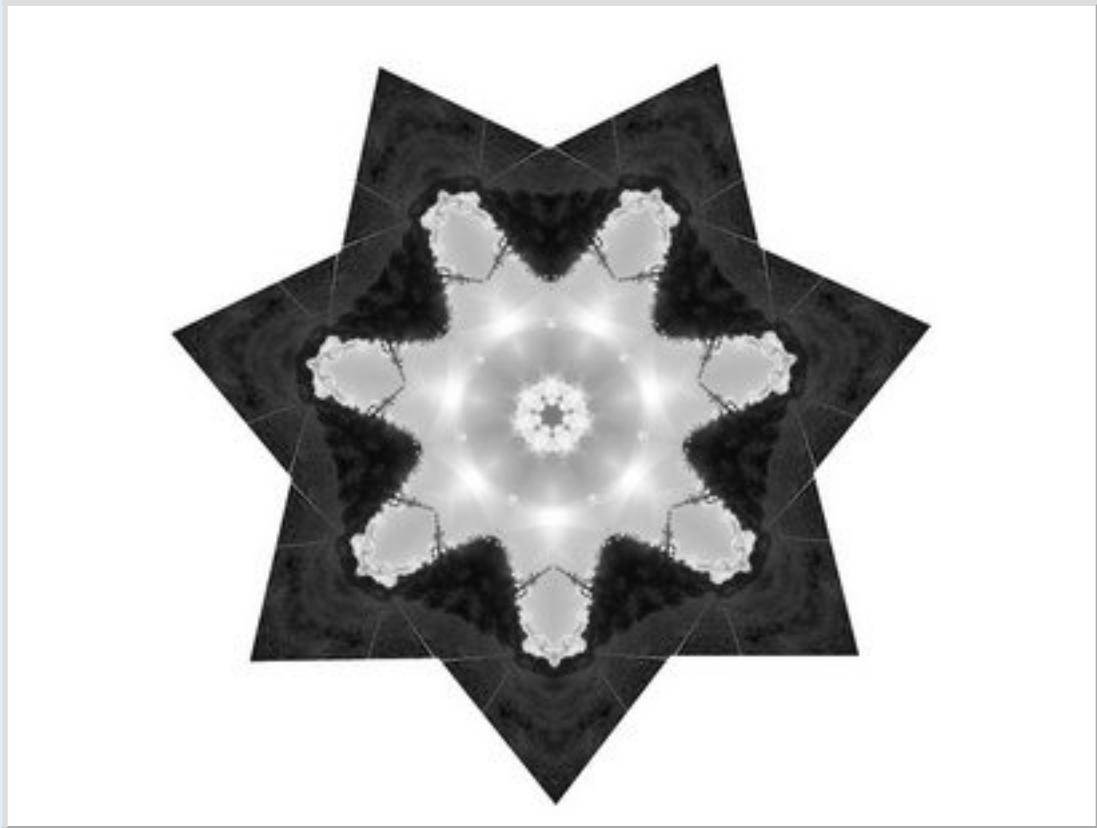

Re: Charles Nicol

by Trev Sawyer, 15-Feb-11 02:34 AM GMT

Ha ha, nice one Charles... 😄 😄

Not sure about the first pattern, but I did have to smile at the second...

It is an old shot of the venue formerly known as "Over Railway Cutting" (home to one of the few colonies of Grizzled Skippers left in our area)... Now it has been concreted over and is better known as the "Mis-guided Busway". We STILL await the opening of this £160 million white elephant. Good luck with getting all that money back from bus fares if it ever opens. 😞

The third pattern must be a peacock.

Trev

Re: Charles Nicol

Trev:

...better known as the "Mis-guided Busway". We STILL await the opening of this £160 million white elephant...

How many years to get a return that "investment"? I'm not too sure how much of the bill has fallen on us, the council tax payers.

There's no recent info about possible opening dates. No doubt one day the mayors of Cambridge and Huntingdon will hold an enthusiastic ceremony: "Good for the people of Cambridgeshire, good for the environment, blah,blah, blah." I wonder if the mayors have been born yet?

Jack

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 15-Feb-11 03:03 AM GMT

The first one's got me really puzzling, Charles. You weren't lucky enough to get an ups picture of great banded grayling, were you?

Guy

PS - With University Challenge coming up in 45 minutes, it occurs to me this would make a jolly good picture round. Not butterflies, of course, because no one on quiz shows knows anything about natural history - but famous statesmen or buildings, for example, seen through a kaleidoscope.

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 15-Feb-11 03:38 AM GMT

In the previous set, from Corfu, I'd actually be interested to see the original of the second picture. I can't make up my mind if it's a speckled wood or a wall, but either way it seems to have a very broad dark edge to the forewing. Or maybe it's neither and I'm completely misreading it. The last is scarce swallowtail and the one above that is two-tailed pasha. But the first one, which looks like a swallowtail, is also puzzling me because I can't see how it works. I'm easily puzzled.

Guy

Re: Charles Nicol

by Charles Nicol, 15-Feb-11 08:32 PM GMT

Well done Trev... the second pic (black & white) was the Over railway site with the disused rails in situ...taken 3 years ago.

The third pic was of a Peacock in February 2009 (my first butterfly of the year)

Guy you are right on the money again !! The top pic was indeed a Brintesia circe upperside:

This butterfly was exhausted by a violent storm & took refuge on the balcony of the hostel near Carcassonne. Despite the valiant efforts of several young ladies it passed away during the night. 😞😞

The Corfu pics were i) Pasha ii) Wall iii) Pasha iv) Scarce Swallowtail ;

here is the Wall:

and the first Pasha (upperside... which may have mislead you !):

Charles

Re: Charles Nicol

by Padfield, 15-Feb-11 08:54 PM GMT

Aha!! All becomes clear! That pasha pic included forewing and hindwing and I was trying to interpret it as just showing part of the hindwing! I did consider jasius, but couldn't make it work.

I see the wall properly too, now.

Thanks!

Re: Charles Nicol

Based on the slight incurve of the forewing edge (as in HBF) I would say that's Knapweed. 😊 definitely not Meadow, potential other would be Provençal, but it isn't I think.

I am flying to Montpellier then picking up a long distance footpath heading west towards Toulouse.

The plan is to walk the footpath for 4 weeks then spend a week relaxing in Carcassonne (where i have spent the last 3 years' hols).

The route passes through the Cevennes but to the south of where DavidM reported from recently : viewtopic.php?f=20&t=5482

I will be offline for most of the journey but will upload pics & reports in due course

Hope everyone else has a super summer 😊
