

Re: Alex Berryman

by ABerryman, 07-Jun-16 03:25 PM GMT

Once again it's been a rather unfortunate gap between posts. I now attend UEA, so am based up in Norwich where it must be said the Butterflies aren't great - but then I was rather spoilt living in Hants! I did return home for a week where a trip over to Chiddingfold yielded a number of Wood Whites (they seem a lot later this year) and good numbers of Green Hairstreak (6 on one group of Wood Spurge) including this rather strangely coloured individual.

Green Hairstreak

Wood White

Of course in the last week or so things have rather picked up in Norfolk with the emergence of the ever enigmatic Swallowtails, which I am lucky enough to have a short 10 minute train ride away. At least 7 were on the wing this morning and suspect this afternoon they are up to very good numbers

Swallowtail

Re: Alex Berryman

by David M, 07-Jun-16 03:28 PM GMT

Great images, Alex, particularly the Wood White with open wings.

Re: Alex Berryman

by Wurzel, 07-Jun-16 08:18 PM GMT

You've been busy then Alex 🍷😄 That Greenstreak is a great find – it looks like it ran out of paint before the job was done 😊

Have a goodun

Wurzel

Re: Alex Berryman

by ABerryman, 17-Jun-16 12:07 PM GMT

Thanks for the kind comments folks.

I am trying to cram as much in as possible before a 5-week venture to the rainforests of Costa Rica in the middle of July (some exciting butterfly species to see for sure!). With this in mind, I paid a visit to Kent for Heath Fritillaries, a new species for me and one I have been after for a while. A dozen or so were flying in optimal conditions in a single clearing and showing very well ... a trip well made!

