

Re: maverick

by maverick, 13-Mar-16 09:53 PM GMT

Fist comma of the year
The kids thought I was really funny ,Daddy jumping over fences at Gulliver world to take a picture of a butterfly

Re: maverick

by maverick, 17-Mar-16 10:34 PM GMT

some of the more interesting visitors to my garden also the small tortoiseshells are back

Re: maverick

by maverick, 15-May-16 08:39 PM GMT

Small coppers are a first for me and local too , Moore nature reserve warringtoalso the orange tips are all over my garden and down the canal bank outside my house
A holy blue has also been seen but its being very camara shy

Re: maverick

by maverick, 15-May-16 08:44 PM GMT

plenty of orang tips this year

Re: maverick

by Goldie M, 16-May-16 05:02 PM GMT

Nice Orange Tip Maverick, time for a look at Gait Barrow for the Dukes and Pearls , hope to try there soon. Goldie 😊

Re: maverick

by maverick, 17-May-16 08:37 PM GMT

This individual stayed in my garden for about three days the weather was bad the whole time but me and my son checked on him several times a day and he just stayed put. That's why I could get up close

Re: maverick

by maverick, 09-Oct-16 08:04 PM GMT

well that's probably the last of the butterflies that im going to see this year
Seen on the banks of the river mersey

Re: maverick

by Wurzel, 10-Oct-16 10:43 PM GMT

If it is the last butterfly Maverick – have a good Christmas etc see you next year 😊 but if not 😊 , and I reckon you might find something else before next season, have a goodun

Wurzel

Re: maverick

by David M, 10-Oct-16 10:58 PM GMT

Keep on looking, Maverick. Whilst the ivy's still in flower, there ought to be Red Admirals feeding on it.

Re: maverick

by maverick, 11-Oct-16 07:01 PM GMT

I've tried hard this year in planting plants that will bring the butterflies nere my garden
I've planted about six buddleia on the river bank along with other wild plants
And most of my garden plants are butterfly friendly, but in Warrington it's been a poor year for me. Ie the peacocks where every where last year ,this year I've only seen about ten ,only one painted lady and so on.
I could in hind sight go further a field looking for them ,but with having two young children it's not always practical (it's a bit difficul taking a picture with a two year old on your shoulder 's)
Let's hope there waiting for next year