

Chiddingfold this year

by P.J.Underwood, 26-Jun-17 01:46 PM GMT

It was just a week ago, that with Trevor, I saw two P.E.'s flying. Then Mark Colvin came along with his friend (John?) and showed us photo's from the previous Saturday, including a grounded female. Then, from Wednesday onwards it was brilliant. We had up to four grounded at the same time, and staying. This next Monday, after a dullish weekend, they were still appearing and I saw four this morning. They were definitely very friendly, trying my boot for taste, pairing up to a Red Admiral and White Admirals were out in large numbers. The season is boiling up in the woods.

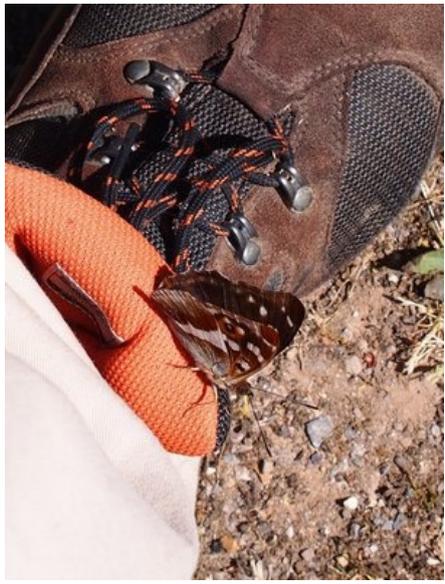

Two friends

A friendly P.E.

All I need is purple.

Getting stuck in

Come to see the P.E.'s

Re: P.J.Underwood.

by millerd, 26-Jun-17 10:24 PM GMT

I do like the shot with the Red Admiral, Philip. It really shows off how much larger the Emperor is... 😊

Dave

Re: P.J.Underwood.

by David M, 26-Jun-17 11:00 PM GMT

millerd wrote:

I do like the shot with the Red Admiral, Philip. It really shows off how much larger the Emperor is Absolutely. Red Admirals aren't exactly small, but that Emperor is a heavyweight in comparison.

Re: P.J.Underwood.

by trevor, 26-Jun-17 11:00 PM GMT

Another great day Philip, they have developed a taste for shoes this year!
I agree, the shot with the Red Admiral is amazing, if only because the RA's are usually skittish, and could easily have panicked that lovely Emperor.

Might see you this week if the forecast improves.
Trevor.